DEAN TAKES THE COUNT.

Walter L. Dean, former county auditor and candidate for secretary of the State Tax Commission, has taken the count under the Willis-Fess rules of order and is down and out.

There is no character in Greene County political history that can equal Mr. Dean when it comes to being persistent and constantly pressing his ambitions forward. This is proven when the county committee were forced to recommend him for a state position despite opposition among known enemies and a number of friends that were only lukewarm.

It cannot be denied but that Congressman Fess is the power behind the Willis administration, particularly when it comes to patronage. The biggest stroke the congressman has made was the selection of the honor loan commissioners in the Seventh district. The fact that some of these men are liberal and some dry adds much to the Dr.'s ability to construct himself a machine out of both elements, taking time occasionally to make a Francis Willard memorial speech if the opportunity presents itself.

The clever manner in which the Dr. chloroformed Mr. Dean has been the topic of conversation from the highest to the lowest politician. The Dr. could not do anything else than endorse him for anything wanted but it has leaked out from many sources that the recommendation carried with it one of those unwritten "I don't care what you do with it" phrases. This left the way open for the state authorities to apply the ante in Mr. Dean's political anatomy and the agony emanating from certain quarters indicates that the sleek Dr. will be so busy in the next primary campaign combating the Dean influence that Woodrow Wilson will think his once favorite college chum had gone on an excursion into the European war zone.

So far as this exponent of public thought is concerned we are prepared for the worst when the Fess-Dean fracas is stayed. Let it come, but let Mr. Dean stand true and vindicate himself. We know he can do it, even though it is at the peril of political future.

Mr. Dean was a factor in the Fess constitutional convention election and the congressman's primary campaign and probably could give the public more information on that famous expense account than any other living soul.

Before we would submit to be slaughtered by our own friends and sacrificed on the altar of friendship as Mr. Dean has been, we would unfold conditions in this county that would be discussed in the open and not merely hinted about. The world admires an honorable fighter but abhors the ingrate.

Not Unnatural Inquiry.

Dorothy has a baby brother who has recently been ill, cutting his first teeth. The baldness of the baby's head had caused Dorothy great anxiety. She stood at the mother's knee one day gently patting the little head. "Be careful, Dorothy," said the mother. "You know poor little brother is ill. He is cutting his teeth." Dorothy patted the bald head reflectively. "Mamma," she said, "will it make him ill when he cuts his hair?"

Made Immediate Success.

The "Arabian Nights" did not become familiar to Europeans until 1704, when Galland translated them into French. Scholars cast doubt on the authenticity of some of Galland's work, accusing him—like Fitzgerald and Omar Khayyam—of inventing rather than translating, but with the public success of the tales was immediate and immense.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. BELLEFLORE, Acting Director of Sunday School Course, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

LESSON FOR MARCH 21

JONATHAN AND HIS ARMOR-BEARER.

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 14:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let us put on the armor of light.—Rom. 13:12.

Samuel's review of his life of integrity, his charge to the Israelites, his testimony of displeasure over their persistent desire to have a king, and Samuel's words of comfort and assurance as found in chapter 12, form an interesting connection with last Sunday's lesson. In chapter 13 we have the record of Israel again in distress and of Saul's folly in his assuming the priestly office (vv. 13, 14).

I. Saul's Distress.—4-14. That Saul's disobedience, just indicated, had incurred God's displeasure, we know. It evidently had its effect upon the people also, for his army had dwindled during the intervening fifteen or eighteen years, from 330,000 (ch. 11:5) to a feeble 600 (v. 2). They were further handicapped by a lack of weapons (ch. 13:15-23). Deserted by Jehovah, by Samuel, Jehovah's priest, and by nearly all of his enthusiastic subjects (see 11:12) Saul was "in the uttermost part of Gibeon" hiding under a pomegranate tree (see vv. 11, 22 and 13:6). This may refer to his being at Ramoth Gilead (20:45-47). In this retirement Saul retains Abiah (v. 3) as priest, thus keeping up the outward form of worship. This priest is not referred to as Jehovah's. He was a grandson of Phinehas, one of Eli's wicked sons, and as such was not to be a successor in the high priest's office (ch. 2:26-30). Such an outward form of "dead work" cannot take the place of a living faith. For Saul to consult the oracle of the Urim and Thummim worn by the priest and later to call up familiar spirits, shows his lack of spiritual apprehension. The references made to Saul's conduct (chapters 12, 13) are an indication of his character and emphasize the psalmist's words as found in Ps. 119:11, 105.

II. Jonathan's Victory.—vv. 4-13. But God had one leader to whom he could speak, Jonathan, who is one of the finest and most attractive characters in the whole Bible. This episode is among the most brilliant in the history of the Israelitish nation. It was a brave deed, and an evidence of that triumphant faith shown so clearly in Jonathan's dealings with David. There seems to be a suggestion that Jonathan had lost confidence in his father, for neither he nor the people knew what he was doing. He was a young man, a man of God, a man of God. Verses 4 and 5 vividly picture the nature of the location wherein Jonathan undertook this feat. Jonathan clearly counted upon the fleshly covenant sign as ground upon which to expect help and victory over his enemies, who lacked such a sign (v. 6). The armor of the Philistines had been divided into three sections (Ch. 13:17), and this gave Jonathan his opportunity. The garrison at Michmash was on the opposite side of the ravine from Gibeon, Saul's headquarters. Hidden by the cliffs it was quite easy to approach the Philistines. It is an interesting and enlightening conversation recorded as ensuing on that journey.

Jonathan—it may be that the Lord will work for us; for there is no restraint to the Lord to save by many or by few (v. 6).

Armorbearer—Do all that is in thine heart; behold I am with thee.

Jonathan—We will pass over, and will discover ourselves to the Philistines. As recorded in verses 9 and 10 was a real one and a revelation of Jonathan's shrewdness. Not to be invited up by the Philistines would suggest a desire they may have had to cover up any weakness. To be asked to "come" suggests their self-confidence.

Today's Message. Two young men of faith saved a nation from disaster and disgrace. They inspired confidence in God and his promises. "Youth for battle, old age for counsel," but there are times that demand action more than conference and consideration. Courage is only of value, however, when based upon much training, devotion to God, the interests of others, and a clear vision. It is not a mere flash in life's pathway. Courage is contagious; Jonathan's feat set on fire the soul of a nation. Read again the roll of honor in the eleventh chapter of Hebrews. The highest courage is not physical but moral. This courage is open to all, but it is intelligently grounded upon God's sure revelation in his word and in the person of his Son, our Lord. "And his armor-bearer after him."

Jonathan did not go alone. On the other hand it is not probable this young lad would have gone up those rocks had not Jonathan led the way; because one went before him, he was able to scale the fortress. God alone knows the heights to which we may attain, but does not ask us to go alone, nor expect us to do the impossible. The greatest heroes are not military, they are Christian heroes, who put on the Christian armor and whose "strength is the strength of ten because their hearts are pure." Such heroes are not dismayed at the contempt and gibes of the enemy.

Xenia will have a Real law election to be called at once according to the decision of a number of citizens Monday evening who organized to conduct the campaign. It is said that the campaign will be entirely different from former years. Xenia usually votes wet and the coming election will be watched with interest throughout the county. Temperance people in the city cannot think of allowing the saloons to open under the recent election without another contest.

New Paris votes Saturday to dissolve the village district and placing the schools under the direction of the township as one district as was done here several weeks ago. Camden and Somers township vote on the same proposition the same day. Lanier township votes on centralization and a $50,000 bond issue. At Eldorado and West Manchester a vote on centralization will be taken both districts to be abolished and centralized with the township. This will combine three districts in one and provide a large centralized school. The public has come to realize that it is economy to centralize in that the schools of two or more districts can be operated at a little more than half what it has been in the past. Cedarville has the honor of being one of the first places in this section to take the advanced step for improved schools. It is only a question of the public becoming interested now and not wait until legislation makes it compulsory to act.

Mr. W. P. Anderson left Monday for Hale Center, Texas, where he will superintend the cultivation of his farm in that section. Last year was an unusual year for crops in that country and it is said that wheat prospects are good this year.

DEATH OF MRS. BARBER.

Mrs. Sarah Barber, widow of John A. Barber, died at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Townsley early Friday morning after a long illness of heart trouble and other complications.

The deceased was the daughter of Innis and Sarah Townsley and was 52 years of age at her death. She was married to John A. Barber, March 4, 1885, the husband's death occurred in 1892. Mrs. Barber is the last member of her immediate family and is survived by two daughters, Mrs. D. H. Brin, of Xenia, and Mrs. J. C. Townsley, of H. Barber is a step-son.

The deceased spent her entire life in this vicinity. She had been a lifelong member of the United Presbyterian church and was a devoted Christian woman. The funeral services were held from the late home Saturday afternoon. Rev. McMichael being in charge. Prayer was offered by Rev. H. P. Jackson, and Rev. Dodds, of the First U. P. church, Xenia. Burial took place north of town.

The annual high school concert will be held on April 2.

Dr. W. R. McChesney preached last Sabbath in the Presbyterian church at Yellow Springs in the absence of the pastor, Rev. W. R. Graham.

Mrs. W. R. McChesney was hostess to the Kandastra club last Friday afternoon.

That new government income tax is not worrying us a bit.

The Xenia Federals won the basketball game here with the college boys by a score of 32 to 25. The game was hotly contested, the visitors having a strong team.

It remained for a Jamestown woman to successfully try out a new scheme for ridding her place of rats. She went to the drug-store, where she procured a supply of sponges, which she fried in meat fryings until they were thoroughly soaked with grease, she tore the sponges into small particles and distributed them among the rendezvous of the rodents. It is claimed that the rats greedily partook of the sponge diet, resulting in their death. Worth giving it a trial, anyhow.

The New Carlisle Sun boasts of a new industry in the vicinity of that town, which promises to be a big thing. Capitalists have purchased about 1000 acres of ground, the soil of which will produce a high grade cement, and it is proposed to establish a plant that will give employment to about five hundred men.

Many a small town has expanded and grown to healthy proportions because commercial travelers have made favorable reports of it. These reports have spread from tip to tip until finally they have reached the ears of manufacturers who have been looking for just such a place in which to locate. Why can we not do as much in our town?

As the summer approaches let us all strive to make our own town so attractive in appearance that these men will as the good word does until it reaches the men who are looking for US. They are looking, and they are numerous, but we must do our part or "they" and "we" will never meet. It is every man's duty to look after his own premises there will not be much left for the town authorities to do. It is a little thing for each one, but in the aggregate it will work a revolution in civic advancement.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Nagley entertained the members of the C. A. C. club, their wives and lady friends at a "pig roast" Friday evening. The supper, which was an unusual one, in that roast chicken has been the feature in the past, was a delight to all present. The young porker weighed 54 pounds and was garnished with all the good things of the season. About forty partook of the four course supper. Clusters of carnations and ferns were given as favors.

Among those here to attend the funeral of Mrs. Sarah Barber last Saturday were: Mrs. Grant Loyd, Farmersville; Mrs. Elizabeth Nash, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Jamison, Dayton; Mrs. Ada White and Mrs. Kitty Lawler of Lebanon; Miss Ella Jamison, Middletown; Martin Jamison, Lebanon.

Use of the Bayonet. In all bayonet training the instructors never lose sight of the fact that the weapon's use is apt to be more for psychological than any other effect. Men are told constantly that a force attacking with bayonet is as easily scared by a determined show of resistance as the attacked party. "Get a good solid foothold," is a favorite form of advice, "and when he runs at you, sidestep and swipe his face off with the butt."

Wallike Queens. There was a Bohemian queen who enrolled the greater number of her female subjects into a species of militia and trained them to ride on horse-back, too. Poland also boasts a Wanda, first queen regent of Poland, in the year 700, who never married, insisted that she could rule the better without a husband, and who proved this by leading her country's troops in victorious battles.

KILLS GARVER AMENDMENT

Senate Finally Disposes of Bill by Unanimous Vote.

FLOOD PREVENTION VICTORIOUS

Unprecedented Scene Follows the Killing of This Vicious Measure. Senators and Crowded Galleries Wildly Cheer as Result is Announced—All Further Opposition is Believed to Be Dead.

Columbus, (Special).—It took the senate just thirty seconds to dispose of the Garver amendment to the Vonderheide flood prevention law.

Garver, realizing his defeat, moved for an indefinite postponement. Lieutenant Governor Arnold put the question immediately, and the whole senate chorused "Aye," thus ending the fight.

It all happened so quickly that hundreds of the friends of the Vonderheide act did not realize just what had happened.

This unanimous action on the part of the senate indicated a statewide sentiment in this matter.

A Hopeless Fight.

Unable to muster at any time more than six votes, including his own, Senator Garver has been fighting a hopeless battle with almost unanimous state sentiment against him. For many weeks this fight has continued, clogging up the legislative wheels and holding back important legislation. During all this time there had been no effort on the part of the author of the amendment to get his measure before the senate—it was simply a game of delay from the start. Finally the senate reached the end of its endurance and a threat was made to take the bill out of the hands of the committee which had it under consideration.

This brought the matter to the floor of the senate, and the action taken Wednesday was the final round.

That the people of Ohio are firm in their belief that justice must prevail was evidenced by the permanent shelving of this amendment, and it should have a salutary effect on the house in its consideration of the Quinlisk amendment. This measure would be just as disastrous to the best interests of the flood sections of the state as the Garver amendment would have been, and in order to fully protect the people of the state against interference with the broad plans as made possible by the Vonderheide law this amendment must also be killed. It is the belief of the friends of the Vonderheide law that the house will follow in the steps of the senate in this matter, and that the Quinlisk amendment will meet the fate of the Garver measure, if indeed it is ever further considered.

Garver Strength.

Senator Garver made a canvass of the senate when his measure came up. He was only able to muster four votes, outside of himself and Senator Myers of the Marion district, who has been very active with Garver ever since the agitation began. It was stated that Garver agreed that if the senate would indefinitely postpone action rather than vote his measure down, he would not bring up other measures to amend the Vonderheide act. The friends of the Vonderheide law agreed to this in order not to humiliate him with an overwhelming defeat.

Judge Brown's Statement. "The people of the state won a brilliant victory in the Ohio senate," said Judge O. B. Brown of Dayton. "Senator Garver found it impossible to muster more than six votes for his amendment, and rather than suffer humiliating defeat, he moved to indefinitely postpone the vote on his measure."

Women Attend Session.

Several hundred women from the west side of Columbus were in the senate gallery early in the day. They wore white badges asking for protection against floods. Many of them were on the scene early in the morning and they brought their lunches. Books, knitting and other diversions were indulged in to while away the time until the session opened. They were there to see that their rights were not neglected and they left happy in the thought that now the way had been cleared for progress in the work of flood protection throughout the state.

The scene was impressive in the extreme. These hundreds of women had suffered from the effects of the flood and they were there as living witnesses to the fact that the state legislature has a real responsibility in this matter of flood protection that is more far-reaching than the mere political ambitions of one or two men.

Statement From Committee.

The Miami valley flood prevention committee made the following statement relative to the defeat of the Garver amendment: "We are now satisfied that the members of the state legislature realize the real value of the Vonderheide flood prevention law as a protective measure. It has been championed by the very best authorities in the United States, and this fact could not escape the notice of those men, who are here to serve the state to the best of their abilities.

"The pleas of the thousands throughout the flood stricken valleys no doubt had a salutary effect, and the educational nature we have witnessed proved to be most effective. Scores of members of both houses have, from time to time, assured us of their enthusiastic endorsement of our plans, and we have felt, from the first, that the members would be glad to have an intelligent manner."

"The legislative defeat of the
